"The Exposition will open its doors to the public on Wednesday evening next, and in view of that fact it is in order to make a few suggestions to the thousands of visitors who will improve the opportunity of inspecting the building and exhibits on the opening night. First they must realize the herculean task the directors assumed when they attempted to erect the buildings, from the very inception of the enterprise. Difficulties have been surmounted which would have deterred less determined men from undertaking the task. The financial problem was an unceasing cause of anxiety and hindrance to the speedy and successful comple-tion of the work. The terrible Johnstown disaster still further complicated matters, and made seemingly hopeless the task of raising the money necessary to pay for labor and materials. Subscriptions to the treasury of the society came in painfully slow, and com-pelled the managers to be careful in awarding contracts, for fear of incurring liabilities which they would be unable to liquidate, and contractors were naturally cautious in assurances that bills when due would be satisfactorily in the end.

The managers do not desire to follow in the footsteps of anyone. It is their aim to make the Pittsburg Exposition unequaled in this country. this kind does not impoverish a community, but is of great financial value to it.

"Many exhibits will not be fully ready on the opening night. It is possible, and indeed probable, that the working force in the various departments, especially at the ticket offices and turnstiles, will not work as smoothly as the management desires. That is not to be wondered at. The duties to be performed by the ticket sellers, door-keepers and other employes are, at the outset, somewhat unfamiliar to them. They will do all that it is possible to do, and the directors will be on hand to assist in every possible manner. After the first day or so the machinery in all departments will be thoroughly oiled and work perfectly and harmoniously. If the public will shut their eyes to the imperfections and endeavor to look up the many deserving good points, everything will soon be adjusted to their entire satisfaction."

Rumors About Releases of Some Local Ball Players.

COLUMBUS AGAIN BEATS ST. LOUIS.

Goseip About the Prospect and Work of the Cleveland Club.

GENERAL SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

The home ball team left yesterday for New York, where they play two games to-day. There are significant rumors about releasing local players. Columbus again beat St. Louis and Mark Baldwin pitched. New players have been secured for Louisville and more are to be bought.

The home team left yesterday morning for its last trip East this season. There is considerable hope centered in the team, but whether or not they realize even 75 per cent of these hopes is very problematical. It is known as a fact in the baseball world that no club in the country is more liable to do extraordinarily good work or extraordinarily bad work than the Pittsburgs. It is, therefore, a question as to whether or not the team on its las Eastern trip will carry out one of these qualities-that is, either the good or bad quality. Manager Hanlon left the city vesterday morning full of confidence. He urged good reasons why recent games have been lost, and he pointed out just as good why the local team should win games in the East. It is a fact that to-day the most interest will be centered in the visit of the Pittsburgs to New York.

MUTRIE'S ESTIMATION. The last time the latter team were here they were beaten completely, and it is also a fact that Manager Mutrie has the highest estimation of the dangerous elements of the Pittsburg team. This means that Pittsburg has a chance to ruin the prospects of the Giants for the pennant. The chance is so great that undoubtedly all the patrons of the New York club will be looking with anxiety on the two cames of to-day. Yesterday morning Manager Hanlon had not made up his mind as to who would pitch today's games. It is likely, however, that Morris and Staley will be the pitchers. It may also be taken as tolerably certain that Keefe will pitch in one of the New York games to-day and that Crane or O'Day will pitch the other game. At any rate, Manager Mutrie has always said that if he got through all right with Pittsburg a great burden was removed from his mind. One interesting feature of the matter is the fact that Pittsburg has always played an important part in ruining the hopes of aspirants for League pennant honors.

The club will be away from home until Mon day, September 16, when the boys will tackle the Clevelands. After playing three games the team will go to Indianapolis for three more games, and then return home to stay. Then will commence the real struggle for positions.

PLAYERS TO BE BELEASED. There are many rumors affoat as to players who are to be released. It is officially stated son except the price is put up. Certainly one or two players are for sale if bids are worthy of notice. A gentleman directly interested in the club said last evening: "I know that both Mr. Nimick and Mr. Scandrett have made up their Nimick and Mr. Scandrett have made up their mind to release at least two men as soon as the price is offered. They are good men, and I don't want to give away secrets by saying that one is a fielder and the other a pitcher or anything like that. All I say is that the price will get two very good men. These men can be had before the season ends, and after the season closes believe me, if certain deals can be consummated, more than two or three of what is termed the 'old guard' will be disposed of. It now seems certain that the club financially will quit even, and if that is accomplished you can rest assured that more accomplished you can rest assured that more money will be put into it for next year. I know this for certain. All that is required now is to make accounts balance evenly, and if that is done some old players will be let go and better

THE BABIES HEARD FROM. A Few Words by Foster About Their Many

Defeats. ISPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE DISPATCH. CLEVELAND, O., August 31 .- Did anyone ever see such a contrary club as this organization of ours? A week ago we were all lamenting the lack of batting ability on the part of our infants, and noting the loss of games where a base hit at the right time would have turned the tide of defeat away from Cleveland and saved many games for the youngsters. Now, however, it is all the other way. The home club is hitting the ball hard and opportunely, but letting games slip up by a disastrous error at the critical points of the game, something they have not done before during the season. All three of the close Chicago contests the past week should have been Cleveland's but for bad errors. The Chicago pitchers were batted hard and viciously, and the fusillage was kept up on Getzein when he started in to pitch Thursday's game. If the infants keep up this hitting streak they are liable to make it warm for the clubs that are close to them. The local directors have about decided to go out in the wilderness and hunt up one or two strong, hard-hitting fielders. They have delayed the matter boping that the present men would come around, as it seems almost a shame to break into such a beautiful fielding team, as this year's organization has proven to be. There are two places, however, that can stand strengthening and a move will be made in that direction.

With the loss of so many games in succession the loss of attendance has increased in equal proportion, and yet the home club has been playing as retty, scientific and hard game of ball as it eve did. The cranks, or rather the poolroom sharks, are sore and very ugly because they have lost money, which serves them right in one sense. Not satisfied with drawing their little patronage they have been guilty of circulating the most contemptible kind of stories about both the players and the management. These stories are swallowed by the more credulous of the better class and they won't go to the ball games, either. Could the won't go to the ball games, either. Could the home club have won its 50 games and lost its 50 games alternately interest would be at fever heat to-day.

heat to-day.

There are a great many people and baseball writers in other cities who have often taken occasion to refer to Gleveland's wonderful winning spurt. Well, now, there wasn't so much of a spurt on the Gleveland's part. The club wasn't playing a bit better than it is now. Its success was due, as anyone who stops to reason out the matter must agree, more to meeting success was due, as anyone who stops to reason out the matter must agree, more to meeting the other clubs when they were weak and not playing in the best of trim than to the fact that Cleveland at that time was playing phenomenal ball. That spring trip of the Clevelands to Hot Springs, Ark. and the fact that all the members of the club entered the race in excellent condition, had more to do with the club's success than the management ever imagagined when they requested the club to assemble there.

The outfield work of McAleer and Radford The outlield work of McAleer and Radford during the past week has been so exceptionally brilliant that especial attention ought to be called to it. the management has had on the string for the mast two weeks, and their signatures have at last been secured to a contract. They will join the club at Columbus to-morrow. Little is known of the two men, although they come highly recommended by Manager Chapman.

The latest addition to be made is young Clarkson, of the Tri-State league. He is a brother of Boston's great pitcher, and if he possesses half of the latter's ability as a ball player, Louisville will be satisfied with him. The young man made his debut in the Tri-State league, and of course his work in the few games there is not to be taken as a criterion. He is said to possess all the requisites of a good ball player, and the management think that with proper training he will develop into a great pitcher. He took part in but ll games with Linua last season, and had a barting average of 162. As a pitcher he ranked low, but his improvement has been rapid this season. [SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] CLEVELAND, O., September 1 .- The records of the Bankruptcy Court for the Northern district of Ohio bear the petition in bankruptcy of one John Hester. The Hester case, as it was called, was the most interesting and romantic one ever brought before the court of this district. The story, as related to the writer by the Register of the court, is as follows: John Hester was a well-to-do farmer of Huron county, O. He had one pretty daughter, who wassent to Oberlin to school. There she attracted the attention of an untamed youth from Michigan, whose wealthy parents had intrusted him to the reformatory energies of Oberlin, and no sooner had the youth declared his sudden passion than, without waiting for the sanction of the Michigan parents, she hied to her father's home in Huron county and married him on

First base on balls—By Baldwin, 2; by Chamberlain, 1. The young man's parents were at first obdurate, but it was not long until the young people were invited to dwell under their roof. All went smoothly for some time. The young husband seemed a miracle of reformatory zeal, and a place of trust in his father's bank was given him. But soon he began again to find vice attractive, and one morning while the wife had gone on a visit to her happy childhood's home in Huron county, he was missing from the bank, and so was $70,000 of the bank's money.

It was supposed that young Hester had gone to his wire, but that young woman and the Hesters professed such entire ignorance of his whereabouts and such grief over his sins that the detectives were led into other afternoon, each being hit safely only seven paths of inquiry. After several weeks of times, but those made by the Athletics were of the productive kind, while those of the visitors were made when the bases were vacant. Fennelly's home run drive, which cleared the cener field fence, and the fielding of McPhee and Carpenter were the features. Sure enough, Hester and his daughter alighted from an omnibus before the hotel, and in a few minutes a single carriage drove up with one man in it. The young woman made a rush for the carriage, but the officers were there first. Considerable resistance to arrest was offered by the young fellow, who was armed, and in the excitement John Hester walked rapidly out into the open country with a portmanteau in his hand. There was not a horse car running on New York streets to-day which did not carry a conductor to collect the fares of the passengers. Some of the crosstown lines are still running the old jigger cars, but each and every one has a conductor attached to the stump of the bobtail. An ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen on June 26 ordered every car to be provided with conductors on September 1. The Christopher and Tenth Street Railroad asked some time ago for an extension of time to November 1, when their new cars are to be ready. The Aldermen agreed to give this extension, but the Mayor vetoed it.

All the roads were accordingly put on the same level. Over 150 men went to work to-day for the first time on the various roads. They re-ceive from $2 to $1 50 a day, according to CHICAGO, September 1.-The Chicago the job. All the lines will probably in time have commodious new cars running, as the example of the Twenty-third street and Seventh avenue roads in replacing the Trades Assembly has adopted resolutions expressing sympathy with the great London strike, and their approval of the other trades taking an active part in aid of the wharfsmall, narrow jiggers with the expensive cars now in use has proved preferable.
